801-811 17th Street, S.E. (1922)

There are buildings only on the west side of 17th Street; Congressional Cemetery (founded 1807) occupies the eastern side of 17th Street. These six row houses have concrete foundations; beige brick walls, two stories with three bays; a front door with transom; five rectangular one-over-one double-hung windows with stone sills and a soldier course above all windows; a front porch extending over two bays with brick columns; a straight mansard roof, flaring at the bottom edge, and exposed rafters, no dormers; and a flat tin roof (original appearance). The current appearance is the same except that the slate on mansard roofs was replaced with asphalt shingles at 801-805, 811 17th Street; brick porch columns were replaced with metal fluted columns at 809 17th Street; six-over-six windows were installed at 811 17th Street, S.E.; the front porch roof has been altered at 801 17th Street; the front porch has been removed at 805 17th Street, S.E.; and the mansard roof rafters have been boxed at 807 and 811 17th Street.

Barney Circle (1922)

These four row houses (5, 6, 7, and 8 Barney Circle) have concrete foundations; brick walls, two stories with three bays; a front door with transom; five double-hung rectangular one-over one windows in front with stone sills and a soldier course above the windows; a front porch extending over three bays; a straight mansard roof with slate shingles, exposed rafters and double shed dormers; and a flat tin roof (original appearance). The current appearance is the same except that all front porches have been removed, six-over-six windows have been installed at 7 and 8 Barney Circle, and modern bay windows have been installed on the side of 8 Barney Circle.

1601-1625 H Street, S.E. (1922)

These thirteen row houses have concrete foundations; beige brick walls, two stories with three bays; front door with transom; five rectangular six-over-one double-hung windows with stone sills; a front porch with brick columns extending over two bays, except the corner row house (1601 H Street), where the porch extends over three bays; a straight mansard roof, flaring at the edge with fish-scale slate shingles (alternating plain roof or double shed dormers); and a flat tin roof. The corner row house (1601) has an angled bay on the side. This is the original appearance. The current appearance is the same except that the front porch has been removed at 1615-1619 and at 1623 H Street; a pedimented doorway was installed at 1603 H; one-over-one windows were installed at 1601, 1609, 1611, 1615, 1617 1619, 1623, and 1625 H Street and six-over-six windows at 1621 H Street.

810-824 Kentucky Avenue, S.E. (1922)

These eight row houses have concrete foundations; beige brick walls, two stories with three bays; a front door with transom; five rectangular six-over-one double-hung windows in front with stone sills and a soldier course above all windows; a front porch extending over two bays with beige brick columns; a straight mansard roof, flaring at the edge, with slate shingles, exposed rafters and an alternating double shed dormer/no dormer pattern; and a flat tin roof (original appearance). The current appearance is the same except that the door frame at 820 Kentucky Avenue has been replaced with a broken pediment door frame and the front porch has been removed at 816 and 820

Kentucky Avenue; six-over-six windows were installed at 810 Kentucky Avenue, one-over-one windows at 812, 818, and 820 (first and second stories) and on the first story at 824 Kentucky Avenue, and Palladian-style windows were installed on the second story at 824 Kentucky Avenue.
